Findings and supporting rules

1. Code 80053 was billed twice on 2024-03-05

DEFINITE | Amount in question: $95.00

What happened

Your bill lists code 80053 two times on 2024-03-05, on lines B2 and B3. A blood test that checks several body chemicals at once, including blood sugar and kidney function. The second line asks you to pay $95.00.

Why it matters

If you received this service once, the second line adds $95.00 to what you owe.

Next step

Ask the billing office to remove line B3 or show why it was needed.

Evidence lines: B2, B3

Rule: Duplicate rule: same code and date of service (80053, 2024-03-05) | Finding reference: 9f11c6299f

2. Codes 80053 and 82947 may be billed together by mistake

LIKELY | Amount in question: $110.00

What happened

Your bill lists code 80053 and code 82947 on 2024-03-05. A blood test that checks several body chemicals at once, including blood sugar and kidney function. A blood test for sugar (glucose). It is also part of the larger blood chemistry panel. Billing rules treat 82947 as normally part of 80053. This appears to conflict with a billing rule and should be reviewed.

Why it matters

If 82947 is already included in 80053, the $110.00 charged on line B4 may not be owed.

Next step

Ask the billing office to review line B4 against the billing rules.

Evidence lines: B2, B4

Rule: NCCI PTP edit: column 1 80053, column 2 82947, modifier indicator 1, effective 1996-01-01 | Finding reference: 27827421fd

3. Your bill is higher than your insurance statement says you owe

DEFINITE | Amount in question: $207.00

What happened

Bill line B5 asks the patient for 247.00; EOB line E4 says patient responsibility is 40.00. A longer or more involved office visit with a doctor for an existing patient.

Why it matters

Your EOB shows what you owe for this service. The bill asks for $207.00 more.

Next step

Ask the billing office to match line B5 to your EOB, or explain the difference.

Evidence lines: B5, E4

Rule: EOB patient responsibility for 99214 on 2024-04-12 | Finding reference: ad85f330b9

Potential billing discrepancies are requests for review, not confirmed savings or a final amount due.

A line match based only on a code or a different modifier needs review against the original documents.

Some rule tables may be samples; the data sources are listed below. A clean result does not prove every charge is correct.
